How and Where to Obtain a Diagnosis/Assessment in Indiana: Autism Spectrum Disorders and Mental Health

Contributed by Dr. Cathy Pratt, BCBA-D, Marci Wheeler, MSW, and Josephine Kincaid, BSPA

When an individual is suspected of having an autism spectrum disorder and/or a mental health issue, obtaining an accurate diagnosis can be a time consuming, costly, and confusing process. However, the process can be made easier when qualified personnel are located who can thoroughly assess the individual to determine if they meet the diagnostic criteria for either. In this year’s list, we have documented not only those who diagnose, assess, and/or treat an autism spectrum disorder but also provide options for those who have or are suspected of having a mental illness.

For children attending an ABA (Applied Behavior Analysis) program, some are equipped with licensed personnel to perform some level of diagnostic testing as part of the intake process. Most are equipped to complete programming assessments, including the ABLLS®-R and/or VB MAPP. Ongoing assessment assists with program development. Contact individual providers/centers to identify their assessment options. For a list of ABA providers in the state of Indiana, visit our website at https://www.iidc.indiana.edu/pages/where-and-how-to-find-an-aba-provider-or-center.

For infants or toddlers prior to their third birthday, local First Steps Service personnel may be able to assist in locating trained personnel. The phone number for your local First Steps can be obtained by calling (317) 232-1144 or (800) 545-7763. You will need to provide the name of the county in which you live, and they will provide you with the number to call for your county. You can also visit the First Steps Map webpage: http://www.in.gov/fssa/ddrs/4819.htm and click on your county to find information on your local First Steps Office.

If you are seeking an assessment for an individual of school age, including ages 3 through 5, contact your local school district for information. School districts employ psychologists and other professionals who can assess school-age children to determine if they meet eligibility criteria for receiving services. If your child is between the ages of 3 to 21, an educational assessment with a team of qualified professionals is required to determine eligibility for special education and related services. A “medical diagnosis” from a physician does NOT necessarily qualify an individual for educational services. Evaluations conducted through the school district are conducted at no cost to parents. If you have received a medical diagnosis, inform your school and provide their school psychologist with a copy of the report. They can use the report as a reference and important additional information when determining eligibility for services.

The Bureau of Developmental Disabilities Services (BDDS) provides diagnostic/evaluation services for individuals in need of residential services. Individuals will have to be assessed to determine initial and continuing eligibility for services. BDDS is also the main entry point for Indiana’s Medicaid (HCBS).
Waivers for children and adults with developmental disabilities. An autism spectrum disorder is considered a developmental disability. Call the state BDDS office at (800) 545-7763 to request contact information (e.g., phone numbers, names, addresses) for the Bureau of Developmental Disabilities Field Service Office for the county in which you live or go to the BDDS webpage: http://www.in.gov/fssa/files/BDDS.pdf to find the phone number for your local office. More information can be found online at http://www.in.gov/fssa/ddrs/2639.htm.

Community Mental Health Centers and other professionals can assist when pursuing options for those with mental health issues. Visit the website for Division of Mental Health and Addictions at https://www.in.gov/fssa/dmha/2578.htm to locate community options, or refer to our article on Systems of Care at https://www.iidc.indiana.edu/pages/system-of-care.

If a family or agency wants a private assessment, the following agencies and individuals have experience diagnosing and assessing. Some of the professionals on this list may also be able to provide assistance with medications, educational programming, speech therapy, behavioral support, and/or with counseling or psychiatric services. The Indiana Resource Center for Autism and the Indiana School Mental Health Initiative do not recommend a specific organization or person. When contacting those listed below, discuss the cost of the evaluation, the testing procedures and assessment instruments used, and the type of follow-up report. A thorough assessment should allow the examiner to gather sufficient information about areas of strength and need, educate the family regarding the diagnosis, and provide information that logically leads to programming recommendations at home and elsewhere. When pursuing a private evaluation, contact your insurance company to determine how much and what portions of the assessment will be covered. Also, be sure to ask the person/agency doing the testing whether they accept Medicaid, or if there are other payment options they will or will not accept.

You may contact the Indiana Resource Center for Autism at (812) 855-6508, at any time, for more information on autism spectrum disorders or visit our web site at www.iidc.indiana.edu/irca to learn more about the activities of the Indiana Resource Center for Autism. Contact the Indiana School Mental Health Initiative for more information about mental health issues by visiting our website https://lookupindiana.org/schools/.

If you know of others who diagnose/assess ASD or mental health issues, please contact me at prattc@indiana.edu.
