I Am Going to Have Oral Surgery

I am going to have oral surgery. Oral surgery is when a dentist fixes something in my mouth or jaw that is causing problems.
This dentist is called an oral surgeon.
My dentist thinks surgery will make me feel better.
My dentist and my parents want me to feel good and to be healthy.
Being healthy is very important.

Some people have oral surgery because their jaw is having trouble.
Their jaw might pop or make noise and may hurt.
Some people have to have surgery to remove their wisdom teeth.
Some people have surgery to fix broken teeth.
My dentist wants to do oral surgery to make sure my jaws and teeth are healthy.

When I get to the hospital, the nurse will help me get ready.
I will put on a hospital gown. I will have anesthesia, which is a medicine that will help me sleep. The surgeon will do surgery while I sleep.
It will not take very long because I will be asleep.
When I wake up, my surgery will be over and I will have to rest in bed.

After I rest for awhile, the surgeon will tell my parents when we can go home. I may need to rest for a few days before I can start to do a lot. My parents will give me some medicine too.
After my mouth is all healed up, I will start to feel better again.
I will be healthy and will feel better.
Oral surgery will help.
